

CHANGE MANAGEMENT ■
BUSINESS DEVELOPMENT ■

“Many people believe that change management and business development are the same thing. But just because a company develops does not necessarily mean that their people accept and take in what is new. That’s where change management comes in.”

Change management – managing change

WE’VE SEEN IT AGAIN AND AGAIN. A project is delivered on time and under budget. All the hard numbers that are easy to measure are there, but the effect is lacking, because people have not fully taken in what is new. And it’s not until they want to, until they can and until they do that the change process takes effect.

CHANGE MANAGEMENT IS ABOUT PEOPLE. Getting them interested and leading them through the change so that they understand and accept it. We give people the answers to the questions what, when and why – and help you implement and solidify the change. We are change managers globally certified by Prosci and use research-based processes. That means we can promise you results.